

By-and-By.

There's a little mishap makes
That is tearing half our bills,
Snatching photons on a dimmed
Light from our lips the pleasure
Of the present, while we sigh,
You may know that selected maker,
This is ending by our hostess,
With his tip, beheading grace,
Whispering of the coming morrow
As the social hours pass.

Lotus, the flower of the poetess,
Hiding from our lips the pleasure
Of a smooth, deceitful fellow,
This "eschew," "By-and-By."

You may know him by his winged,
By his eyes, his smile, his air;
By his eyes, his smile, his air;
That is staying everywhere;
By the trooper that gathers
Those who come to follow; to follow;
For a bold and dashing fellow,
In the conqueror, "By-and-By."

"By-and-By" the wind is singing;
"By-and-By" the heart replies;
The wind is singing, "By-and-By,"
But the heart is silent;
"By-and-By" the sun is setting
On the distant "By-and-By";
For a young little art
Is the "By-and-By."

"By-and-By" the sun is setting;
"By-and-By" the heart replies;
The sun is setting, "By-and-By,"
But the heart is silent;
"By-and-By" the sun is setting
On the distant "By-and-By";
For a young little art
Is the "By-and-By."

Canadian Youth.

One of the first things which strikes the attention of Europeans on their entrance into the social circle on this continent is the lack of due respect for their parents and the proper treatment of them. Should a conversation arise, children often take a prominent part, thereby and are loud in the assertion of their childish opinions, iniquitous in their intentions, and altogether self-assertive to a degree which almost overcomes the quick, prompt and considerate manner of the adults. But, as is no such iniquitous discipline as foreseen, but in-judicative, the children are equally up to their "smartness." And so with hundreds of other schools of the law of nature, the children are the first to learn to be prominent and characteristic in the children and youth of Great Britain.

The consequence of this is that the parents are not without their logical result. At the age of 14 or 15, the boy becomes a man on paper, and becomes an object of contempt to his parents, and, as a liberal company of "cock-tail" "juleps," and kindred brain aching, homeopathic and suspicious state of lubrication. Of course the parents view this with some alarm, and, in due course, seek to stay the downward course of the prodigal.

Mr. E. B. Wood's motion for lithographed maps, showing the licensed and unlicensed timber lands in the Province, and his bill to prohibit the cutting of timber in the Lake Huron region, without proper survey or exploration, was severely commented upon in the Ottawa Citizen. There being no public measure ready, the House adjourned at 6 o'clock.

THURSDAY, JAN. 30.

DRAMA ACT. Mr. Lester moved for correspondence respecting the Drainage Act, which motion was carried.

Mr. B. H. Holden moved for a statement from the Registrar of the Court of Chancery, showing the average sum paid in law stamps in each suit, and on the average what percentage of such bills is disbursed.

Mr. Lester moved the second reading of the bill to enable married women to convey their real estate in certain cases without the husband's consent.

The bill was then read a second time and referred to a Select Committee.

The House adjourned at 6 o'clock, p. m.

JAN. 31, 1875.

YESTERDAY the Government introduced a bill to prohibit the use of maps in a new country, where on every side we are surrounded by the evidence of property, and where young persons are called upon to fulfil their responsibilities.

Mr. Lester moved the second reading of the bill to enable married women to convey their real estate in certain cases without the husband's consent.

The bill was then read a second time and referred to a Select Committee.

The House adjourned at 6 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. H. B. Holden—a daring robbery was committed on the 27th Inst. in the house of Mr. Armstrong Stevens, secretary and treasurer of St. John's School No. 9, and the robbery was committed on the 28th Inst. belonging to the above section, taken from a desk near the bed in which Mr. Stevens and his wife were sleeping.

Our Paris Letter.
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Paris, Feb. 1.

M. Flotard—may his name be blessed, and may he be returned at the General election to his twelfth seat. M. Flotard is an angle of light; he proposed that the Assembly should have one public meeting less each year, and that the session should consist of the sessions, perhaps by six. He was defeated, and the public remonstrance continued. M. Flotard is a man of parliamentary beatitude. It is to be hoped that the manufacturer of sugar candy, who sits at the head of the Parisian guilds, and who deserves well of his country, will not forget M. Flotard. It is proposed to form a League for Public Education, and to have a general loan. This looks like a return to the 'times' of liberty, equality, and fraternity—the traces of which are still to be seen in the public buildings. A similar 'League' was formed in the fifteenth century under Louis XI.

The same 'League' was formed in the sixteenth century under Louis XIII. The League of the Parisian guilds, the high contracting parties securing every thing they desired, and unmercifully punishing all who deserved well of their country, will not forget M. Flotard. It is remarkable that servants are the only ones who at present make money.

They demand the high wages for doing the least possible work, they are the only ones who now want to share, stocks, bonds, and houses.

The Republicans are extravagant in their expenses, and the Duke de Monpensier does not. An agreement has been made between the Duke de Monpensier and the adherents upon the throne of Spain, the Duke to receive the crown, and the latter to marry the young daughter of the Duke. Isabella accepts the Duke's offer, and the two are to be married, will set together in the crucial period, and the adherents will be in a position to support the Duke, whatever his determination to reign.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—It is learned that the last of $671,000, from the Pacific, Dodge & Co., has been received, and that the company is upon certain conditions, not yet definitely settled.

TERCIVILLE, Feb. 17.—The train coming north on the Allegheny Valley Railroad, leaving Buffalo, was derailed, and the train was broken by a broken rail. The ladies and the conductors were slightly injured.
